Carol F. McCabe, a partner at Manko, Gold, Katcher & Fox, speaks about the EPA's New Boiler MACT and Area Source Rules Thursday, September 9

Philadelphia, PA (August 26, 2010) – In June, the EPA's proposal of the Boiler MACT and Area Source Rules sparked a strong reaction from boiler owners and operators, who say the rules will severely affect business operations. To address the proposal and how it will affect the owners and operators of boilers, Carol McCabe, an attorney of Manko, Gold, Katcher & Fox, LLP will join a panel of speakers for a teleconference on Thursday, September 9 at 1 p.m. EST sponsored by Law Seminar International.

During the one-hour telebriefing, McCabe along with two other speakers will discuss the implications of the controversial new Rules that will affect more than 200,000 boilers, many of which have not previously been subject to boiler control requirements. There will also be a 30-minute question and answer session following the presentations. Eligible participants may qualify for CLE credits.
