Jonathan Spergel and Darryl Borrelli of Manko, Gold, Katcher & Fox, LLP, Guest Speakers on “Considerations for In-Fill Development Opportunities”

Philadelphia, PA (October 28, 2013) – Manko, Gold, Katcher & Fox attorney Jonathan Spergel and in-house technical consultant Darryl Borrelli joined Brian Bennett, senior environmental engineering specialist with Northwestern Mutual, to present “Environmental Regulatory Update: Considerations for In-Fill Development Opportunities.” The program took place on Wednesday, October 23 in Miami Beach, FL at the National Association of Real Estate Investment Managers Architectural & Engineering Council Meeting.

During the program, the panel discussed environmental issues that are often encountered during the redevelopment of “in-fill” sites in urban areas. Specific areas of discussion included vapor intrusion and the anthropogenic impacts in fill as well as issues related to “clean” fill and the export of soil from sites. Key areas of change associated with the new Phase I Environmental Standard (ASTM E1527-13) were also explained to clarify updated procedures and terminology.

MGKF concentrates its practice in environmental, energy, and land use law and litigation.
