MGKF's Kantorczyk is Panelist for Villanova Environmental Law Journal Symposium

February 10, 2017

Philadelphia, PA (February 6, 2017) – Todd Kantorczyk, a partner with the environmental and litigation firm of Manko, Gold, Katcher & Fox, LLP, will be a part of two panels at “The 2017 Blank Rome LLP Villanova Environmental Law Journal Symposium—Implementing the Frank R. Lautenberg Chemical Safety for the 21st Century Act (LCSA)” at the Villanova University Charles Widger School of Law on February 10. The program focuses on general implementation and impacts of LCSA and concerns surrounding how the EPA will protect confidential business information under LCSA. It will run 9:00 am – 12:30 pm. It has been approved by the Pennsylvania Continuing Legal Education Board for three substantive credits.

The first panel will look at the general implementation and impacts of LCSEA. Panelists will examine if LCSEA's deadlines are feasible and/or enforceable, if they are good policy, and what the EPA can do to achieve compliance with the statutory requirements while creating a policy framework that is reasonable and effective.

The second panel will be focused on concerns of how the EPA will protect confidential business information under LCSEA. They will discuss what the industry concerns are and if they are warranted, what the countervailing public interests are, and the steps that the EPA is taking or should take to balance the industry concerns in protecting confidential business information and public interests in broader disclosure.

Kantorczyk has extensive experience advising clients on issues related to regulatory compliance, litigation, and transactional matters, particularly in the areas of air, climate change, and energy. His practice has focused increasingly on issues related to natural gas production in the Marcellus Shale Region, including cutting-edge issues affecting the regulation of upstream and midstream natural gas operations.
