Philadelphia, PA (September 27, 2010) – Jonathan E. Rinde and Bridget L. Dorfman of Manko, Gold, Katcher & Fox, LLP will present at the Pennsylvania Bar Institute's late-breaking seminar on the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Protection's Revised Chapter 102 Regulations: Erosion and Sediment Control and Stormwater Management on October 8 at the PBI Professional Development Center in Pittsburgh. They will also be speaking when the same program is held on October 13 at the PBI Conference Center in Mechanicsburg, with a simulcast, and on October 15 at the CLE Conference Center in Philadelphia.

Rinde and Dorfman will specifically present on the applicability and significance of the revised Chapter 102 regulations and also on stormwater compliance and enforcement, focusing on the role of County Conservation Districts, the role of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, and private rights of action. In Philadelphia, they will also be presenting on the recent changes to the city's Stormwater Ordinance. This seminar will teach attorneys the basics of the entire stormwater regulatory program and will also keep attorneys up-to-date on the most current information in stormwater regulation.

A partner at MGKF, Rinde's practice includes all environmental aspects of real estate development and management. He handles cases related to wetlands and stormwater regulations, sewage facilities and their planning, brownfields redevelopment, military base conversions, business transactions, and environmental litigation. Rinde graduated cum laude from Temple University Law School and received his B.A. from State University of New York at Binghamton.

She currently serves on the Board of Directors of the John Bartram Association. Dorfman received her J.D. at University of Pennsylvania Law School and graduated cum laude from Columbia University.
