Presented

“Legal Perspective on NEPA” at the University of Delaware

(Philadelphia, PA – April 6, 2015) – Brett Slensky, an attorney with Manko, Gold, Katcher & Fox, LLP (MGKF), the environmental, energy and land use law and litigation firm based just outside of Philadelphia, PA, presented a lecture titled “Legal Perspective on NEPA (National Environmental Policy Act)” to senior environmental science students at the University of Delaware on March 25. Slensky, who also graduated from the University (B.S. 1994), provided a general overview of NEPA as well as practical pointers and considerations regarding the Act’s implementation.

Brett Slensky concentrates his practice on the environmental aspects of commercial transactions, property development issues, regulatory compliance and renewable energy. In the transactional context, Brett advises clients on a range of due diligence and permitting issues, applicable state and federal liability protections, and the negotiation and structure of the pertinent deal documents. In the regulatory compliance area, Brett assists clients to meet their particular environmental compliance objectives, including the implementation of practical management strategies and programs for one or multiple facilities, addressing discrete issues that may arise in connection with daily operations, and proactive management of enforcement and business risks.

Prior to joining the firm, Brett practiced environmental law at Drinker Biddle & Reath LLP. Brett also has a technical background, including professional experience as an environmental consultant, which compliments and adds to his diverse skill set in dealing with brownfield redevelopment and site investigation and remediation projects throughout the mid-Atlantic and upper Midwest states.

MGKF concentrates its practice in environmental, energy, and land use law and litigation. It represents clients ranging from Fortune 100 corporations to small, privately held enterprises, both in the Mid-Atlantic region and on a national basis.
