William Hitchcock Joins the Environmental and Energy Law Firm of Manko, Gold, Katcher & Fox, LLP

Philadelphia, PA (April 26, 2016) – Manko, Gold, Katcher & Fox, LLP (MGKF), an environmental, energy, land use law and litigation firm based just outside of Philadelphia, PA, is pleased to announce that William Hitchcock has joined the firm as a new technical consultant. He rounds out a team of 29 attorneys, two other technical consultants and three paralegals. With more than eight years of experience in the chemical manufacturing sector and degrees in both Chemistry and Environmental Engineering, Hitchcock has a diverse skill set that will aid in advising clients on complex technical and regulatory issues. Additionally, his experience with corporate environmental, health, safety, and sustainability programs gives him the ability to suggest practical and cost-effective solutions to meet the challenges facing today's businesses.

Hitchcock's primary areas of expertise are air permitting, emissions modeling, Process Safety Management (PSM), and emergency response. As the environmental engineer for a batch chemical manufacturer, he applied for and maintained compliance with the site's Title V Air Permit. He also served as Incident Commander for the site's Emergency Response Team during emergencies.

"Will rounds out our technical team here at the firm with his chemistry, manufacturing and pharmaceutical experience," said Senior Technical Consultant Darryl D. Borrelli. "He is extremely bright and yet practical in his approach to learning the intricacies of client operations to provide the most valuable service."

Hitchcock is a graduate of Drexel University, where he graduated cum laude with a Master of Science in Environmental Engineering. He received his undergraduate degree at The Pennsylvania State University with a B.S. in Chemistry.
